A Community Asset

The local newspaper is a community asset.

It faithfully portrays the doings and sayings of the home people.

It rejoices in progress and achievement and sorrows in discouragement and defeat.

It fills a niche in the community life.

There is nothing else that can quite take its place.

The home newspaper provides business men and advertisers in general with a convenient and economical advertising medium.

It gives pride and prestige to a community. It is a miserable district that cannot support a home newspaper.

It deserves assistance and support from every phase of community life.

THE ROSE COVERED COTTAGE

By Rev W E Honey

We are told that the great London preacher, Dr. Joseph Parker, cherished the hope of retiring some time to a quiet retreat in a rose covered cottage. He never possessed it except in a dream. We would say it was no inspiration to him to entertain the hope even if unrealized.

Perhaps we desire to travel, to see the Rockies, or the Bermudas, or the cathedrals of England—quite out of the question of course in present circumstances. We may at least be allowed the fancy that some time the privilege will be ours. We may play the children's game of make believe and by reading books of travel and tourist folders may gratify our desire without the inevitable discomforts and annoyances incident to travel, and with the advantage of being able to return home when we want to even at a moment's notice.

Emily Dickenson says:
There is no frigate like a book
To bear us leagues away,
Nor any corner like a page
Of prancing poetry.
This traverse may the poorest take
Without oppress of toll—
How humble is the chariot!

That wears a human soul!
If we would give our imagination some setting up exercises we might discover much to interest us in our own neighborhood. In the familiar landscape there is much to feast the eye, enough of beauty in form and color to exhilarate an artist. French boys on the High School course some years ago told the story of a man condemned to spend several days in his own room as a penalty for duelling. Forced to entertain himself with what he could see in his room and from it, he combined observation and reflection in such a way as to convert imprisonment into an excursion, and wrote the book entitled, "A Journey Around My Room." By this means the value of our own property may be actually enhanced, for ourselves at least. A farmer becoming dissatisfied with his location advertised his farm for sale. When he saw the advertisement in print, he decided not to sell. "Why," he said, "that is just the kind of place I'm looking for." Well our actual situation may seem drab enough; anyhow we may still keep our dream of a rose-covered cottage; it is a tithe-dest to a life of real wealth.

Why, Mary you are breaking more crockery than your wages amount to! What can we do about it?
I don't know ma'am. Maybe you'd better raise my wages.

HERVEY NOTES

J E Patterson of Redlands was removing old acquaintances, clad in trading costume.

Seeding is mostly finished in the neighborhood and affords a new receding attention.

Chas Gade took a load of hogs to the city this week, unscouted which is causing some anxiety.

Phil Sazon and Mr Vanderveke warning people to beware of the heavy rain which is coming next week. The prophets dispute as to whether it will be rain or snow.

The Brushy Lake school teacher James Mac was home over the week end. Wedding bells are ringing, or maybe it is just disc harrows riding over the ground knots.

C O Dawson of Ardendale purchased a team of horses in the neighborhood this week.

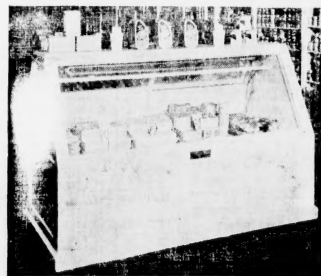

Mrs Walter Keer of Cheadle, miss us the Standard and enquires.

Where does your merchant
keep PERISHABLE Food?

YOU'RE probably a bit "fussy" in your home about the foods you serve, careful to guard them from disease-bearing Bacteria by correct refrigeration below 50 degrees from the moment they enter your home, because you know that unless perishable foods are protected from the heated atmosphere they quickly lose their freshness and may endanger health.

DOES your merchant safeguard the foods which you purchase by using Electric Refrigeration, or IS YOUR FOOD IN DANGER before it even reaches your home?

NEXT time you go shopping for food why not look around the store and see if you are getting this definite assurance of freshness. YOU'RE ENTITLED TO IT.

TO MY MOTHER

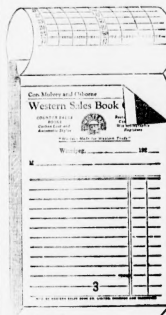

I have a Mother
A lovely Mother
In this world
There is no other.
So sweet and frank,
A wonderful dear
Who sympathizes
With each little tear.
Whose face is always sunny and gay,
Smiling and shining all the day.
Through troubles and hardships
She's never frown.
'Twas a wonderful day,
The day she was born.
And I am so proud as I live today
To have the honor and right to say
This is my Mother.
